Fieldwork safety

- Appropriate clothing should be carried by students to suit weather conditions and in case of changing weather (e.g. jumper, jacket, rainwear, hat, sunglasses, sun-block). A student can be excluded from a field trip by the academic supervisor if the individual does not carry adequate personal protective clothing. As field trips are compulsory, there is a strong onus on the student to ensure that they understand what clothing and equipment is required.
- It is the student's responsibility to provide standard personal protective clothing and equipment as instructed by your supervisor (e.g. stout boots, all-weather gear, hats, sunglasses).
- Where specialised personal protective equipment is required, the ANU will lend these to students (e.g. safety helmets, safety glasses, high visibility vests, ear protection, climbing harnesses).
- During any field visit, every precaution must be taken against endangering your safety, and the safety of others; all equipment must be handled with care, and specific instructions by a staff member regarding safety must be strictly adhered to.
- Return School equipment in good order and report breakages or losses to your field trip supervisor.
- If you have a pre-existing condition that could affect your ability to participate fully in fieldwork activities (e.g. diabetes, severe asthma) it is essential that you advise the supervisor or course convener and/or the First Aid Officer in attendance.

Fieldwork conduct rules

- At all times on field trips, students are representing the ANU and are therefore required to behave to a standard acceptable to the staff members in charge of the excursion. Students must accept and obey directions given by staff members relating to student conduct. This is a requirement for the whole duration of field trips, including any social events during overnight field trips.
- Any breach of these conduct rules by a student may result in their being required to leave the excursion or field trip, which will result in their being deemed to have failed to complete that particular excursion.
- Students are required to pay the costs associated with any field trips and excursions, as levied and administered by the School, and to honour any debts incurred during such trips.
- For further information refer to the ANU procedure:
